Fashion Brands are under tremendous pressure from product related regulations and consumer demands towards transparency

Compliance

- Origin of Materials & Social Compliance
  - CBP Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act
  - AGEC France
  - EU Ban On Forced Labor
- Claims on Materials
  - Crackdown on Greenwashing
  - FABRIC Act / EU Textile Policy

Transparency

- 3/4 customers believe brands should be transparent
- 1/2 of consumers are looking for more clarity on the origin and sourcing of products
- Govts and Regulators demanding for ESG transparency

Increasing regulation and laws add pressure to accurately present all data to back up product claims.

Some questions brands are asking themselves:

Is part of my cotton products' value chain in XinJiang region of China?

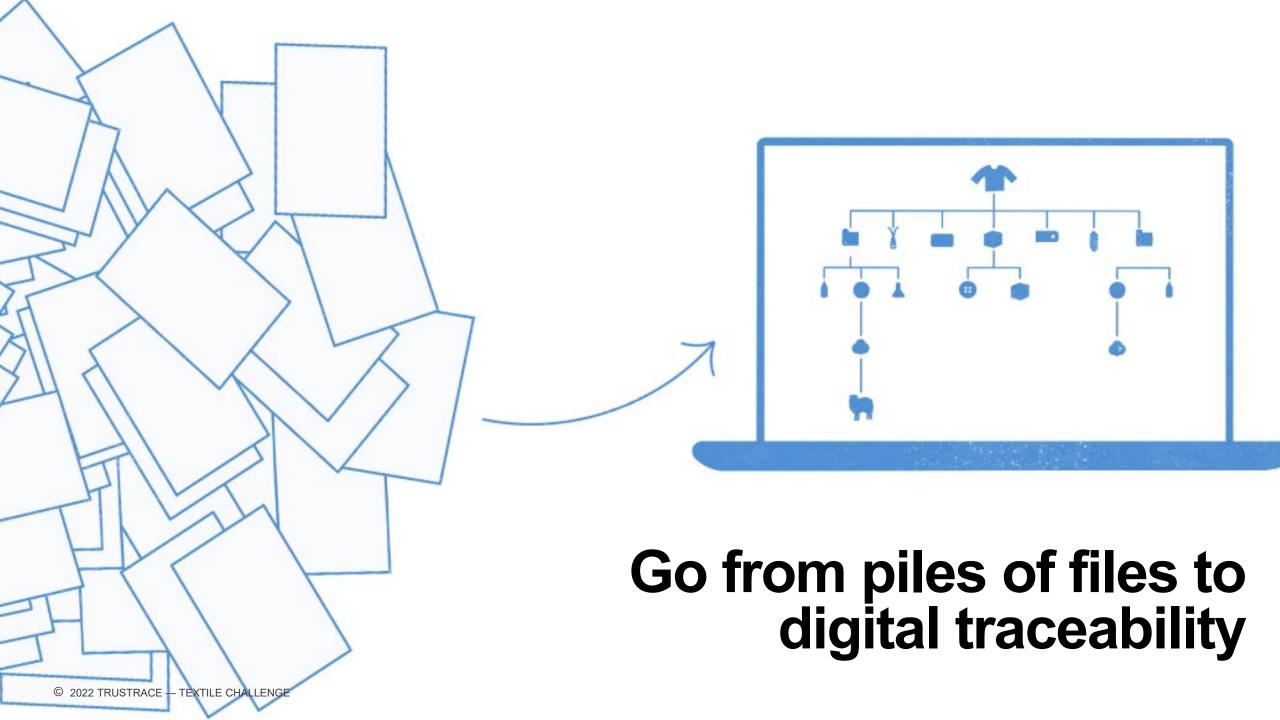

Can I accurately map at least 50% of my supply chain across all tiers?

Do I have enough evidence to prove authenticity of recycled polyester in the pending shipment?

How can I prove that this product is eco-friendly?

3 Levels of Traceability

Product Traceability

Supplier Data Management

Get visibility into your supply chain network to know your suppliers.

Trace and visualize product supply chains and prove countries of origin.

Material Traceability

Trace high risk material supply chains as products are taken to market.

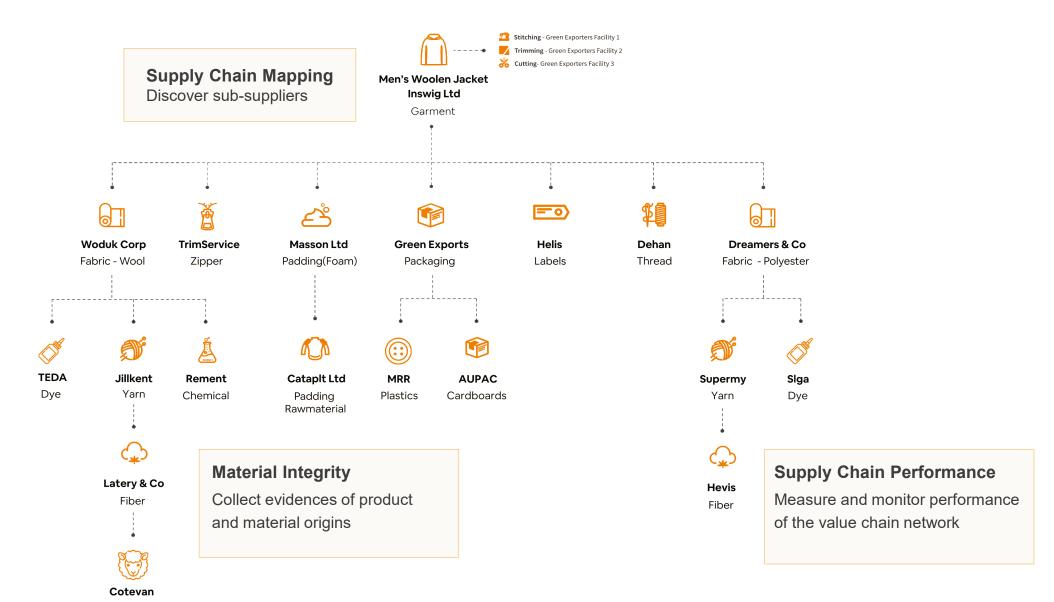

You capture the data real-time and at scale using advanced tech.

Responsible Sourcing

Material Compliance
